Dear Ken:

Attached is a resume on Dr. Sylvia Frank whom I mentioned to you briefly.

I had not seen Dr. Frank for perhaps 30 years but I knew her when she was a graduate student earning her Ph.D. in biophysics at Columbia University. She is now living in the area and as you can see from her resume is quite actively involved in free-lance scientific writing and exposition and I am sure that she could be of very important help in preparing documentary material in connection with the Great Neglected Diseases of Mankind. I realize you have Dr. Bruer with you now but you might well find Dr. Frank handy as backup or a possible successor if that is a question. Both her scientific background, her present literary interests, her ready availability in the neighborhood and her considerable experience in Africa strike me as being important assets.

Since these will likely be part time opportunities I want to assure you that I am looking out for similar ways to exploit her talents for the benefit of the University as well.

Yours sincerely,

Joshua Lederberg
